Welcome to the 12th Annual Early Childhood Mental Health Conference We Can't Wait!

Emerging from COVID, Conflict and Chaos: Creating a Resilient Future for Our Children and Communities

The Planning Committee for the Early Childhood Mental Health Conference would like to welcome you to the 12th Annual We Can't Wait Conference. Each year we look forward to the excitement, curiosity, intelligence, and commitment to children and youth that you bring. This is our second Virtual Event, because of the limitations on physical distance that COVID-19 has caused.

As we continue to try and adapt to the many changes of the past year, we need to continue our commitment to young children and their families. The events of the next three days have been chosen to remind us of the vital work we do. The speakers are excellent and exciting, the topics provocative and educational, and your contributions, through questions and comments, will make them all the more relevant.

This year we are focusing on issues pertinent to serving all of our families. Topics will be presented on racism, equity, inclusion, discrimination, traumatic stress, learning from each other, and understanding how our communities support health or contribute to ongoing adversity. Methods to begin to combat these issues will be described and discussed.

One of the workshops will be clearly labeled as being of an "advanced" level—designed for attendees with years of experience in the field and higher levels of training. Others will be appropriate for all attendees. This is being done to recognize that our audience has grown more sophisticated and experienced and is eager for a more intense learning experience than has been offered in the past.

Several workshops will be presented in both English and Spanish. All presentations will be recorded so that approximately two weeks after the conference, attendees will be able to hear topics they were unable to attend during the conference.

Thank you for making the decision to join us.

Mark your calendars for our 13th Annual Conference to be held September 22-24, 2022.

We sincerely hope you have a fun and interesting time attending this year's conference as we visit the Virtual Exhibits, learn together virtually, network, and set our sights firmly on a future where we can indeed emerge successfully from the problems related to COVID, Conflict and Chaos of this past year.

Distinguished Keynote Speakers

Jessica Pryce, PhD, MSW is an Assistant Professor at Florida State University and Executive Director of the Florida Institute for Child Welfare. For the past 10 years she has been involved in multiple aspects of child welfare, including direct practice, teaching, training, policy and research. She has published on child welfare-related topics, such as training and education, racial disparity and anti-poverty practices, and has presented her research at over 50 conferences both nationally and internationally. Dr. Pryce is the author of several op-eds focused on racial disparity and effective strategies to impact racial disproportionality within child welfare. Her TED Talk on Implicit Racial Bias in Decision-Making has been viewed over 1.3 million times.

Dr. Pryce has worked on the frontlines of child welfare, conducted primary research, been a policy advisor to Florida's legislature and taught graduate level courses in child welfare. In 2019, she received a five-year appointment to the Advisory Board of the National Child Welfare Workforce Institute where she consults and advises on leadership and workforce interventions around the country. Dr. Pryce currently sits on the Florida Dependency Court Improvement Panel, alongside judges and advocates who are working towards a more trauma-informed approach within the judicial system. She has maintained and cultivated a commitment to the well-being of vulnerable children and families, the sustainability of the child welfare workforce, and effectively addressing inequity. Her paramount goal includes re-building and leading a child welfare system that focuses on strengthening families instead of pulling them apart.

Wendy Ellis, DrPH, Founding Director of the Center for Community Resilience at The George Washington University, Washington, DC, will join our community in a presentation focused on understanding the Pair of ACEs—Adverse Childhood Experiences in the context of Adverse Community Environments—and how our programs and practices can address systemic inequity. She has spent the past decade building a national resilience movement of local coalitions that are meeting the challenge before us—dismantling structural racism through policy, practice and program change. Dr. Ellis was an inaugural Milken Scholar at the Milken Institute School of Public Health at The George Washington University where she earned her DrPH in Health Policy in 2019.

Dawn Yazzie, MA, NCC is an Early Childhood Mental Health Consultant on the Navajo Nation and also works for the Center of Excellence (CoE) for Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health Consultation (IECMHC) as a technical assistance provider to Tribal communities building their IECMHC programs. She partners with the Children's Equity Project (CEP) in advocating for accessible and equitable Early Childhood Education (ECE) systems. Dawn provides early childhood mental health consultation to ECE centers, home visitors, and Family, Friend and Neighbor (FFN) staff on the Navajo Nation, and incorporates traditional Navajo cultural perspectives into her work locally and nationally. She earned her MA in Counseling Psychology from Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff, AZ.

Distinguished Keynote Speakers

Kimberly Rodgers, MA is the Program and Communications Manager of the Center for Community Resilience at the Milken Institute of Public Health, The George Washington University, Washington, DC. She provides technical assistance and capacity-building support to a national collaborative of localized networks working to address the Pair of ACEs. She develops tools, resources, and presentations to help cross-sector organizations foster equity through program, practice, and policy change. Kimberly is also the Communications Manager of the National Association of County and City Health Officials, supporting local public health practice by promoting programs, tools, resources, and trainings developed by and for local health departments across a range of topics, including emerging infectious diseases, immunization, emergency preparedness, and informatics.

Kimberly received a BA in Communication and a BA in Psychology from the University of Maryland and an MA in Health Communication from George Mason University.

Sarah Baldauf, MSJ serves as a communications consultant to the Center for Community Resilience and the Sumner M. Redstone Global Center for Prevention and Wellness at the Milken Institute School of Public Health (MISPH) at The George Washington University. Before moving to Atlanta with her family, Sarah served as their Senior Director of Communications, Outreach and Engagement, where she led their communications strategy and built relationships with local, national, and global partners in service of prevention, public health policy, and centering community in the work to reduce the systemic drivers of disparities.

Prior to her work at MISPH in Washington, DC, Sarah was the Director of Public Health Initiatives in the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). Her work there included collaborating with the White House on First Lady Michelle Obama's Let's Move! Campaign; on the administration's expanded tobacco control work, including the 50th Anniversary Surgeon General's Report on the Health Consequences of Smoking and the launch of the multi-million-dollar FDA youth tobacco-control campaign: The Real Cost; and on public health emergencies, including Ebola in West Africa and cases in the U.S. She was a 2014 recipient of the Secretary's Award for Meritorious Service: 50th Anniversary Surgeon General's Report Team at HHS.

Sarah received a master's degree from the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University and a bachelor's degree in psychology from Boston University.

Emerging from COVID, Conflict and Chaos: Creating a Resilient Future for Our Children and Communities

In Memorium:

Debra Stolz ECMH Planning Committee Member 2010-2020

Deb Stolz was so many things to so many people. She was a mother, grandmother, resource (foster) parent, teacher, mentor, advocate and, to those in the know, she was F.A.B.—you have to know the story. Regardless of how well you may have known her, what was evident to everyone with whom she interacted was her leadership, compassion, and steadfast dedication to children, families, and communities. The world was given a gift when Deb Stolz entered it. We suffered a great loss when she and her daughter, one of her eight children, were tragically lost far too early in July 2020. Besides her family and loved ones doing well, nothing would make her happier than to know her spirit will forever be honored and remembered within the We Can't Wait Community. Please join us in holding Deb, her family, and her heartprint in your warmest thoughts and with genuine appreciation for the learning and loving she imparted every day, in every way.

Course Description

As a nation, we have endured months of uncertainty, isolation, illness, fear, trauma, and loss. Research has indicated, and will continue to link, this period with a variety of serious and detrimental effects on well-being and functioning in children and families. The COVID-19 pandemic has also brought to light inequities in services and access to care along lines of race and poverty that will impact families and communities from generation to generation. Our system of care, though well-intended, has been shaped by history and policy, and has created harm to many families, particularly families of color.

Presenters at this virtual conference, in addition to exploring early childhood development, evidence-based practices, and advances in early education programs, will take an honest look at how past and recent events have impacted our most vulnerable populations. Attendees will take a new look at ACEs – with a focus on equity and prevention – and explore effective programs designed to address trauma and build community resilience in children, families, and communities.

Conference Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this activity, the participants should be able to:

- Identify historical factors and current events that have impacted children and families and have created inequities in our system of care
- Review organizational policies to identify ineffective procedures and inequitable impact
- Explore diversity-informed strategies to support infants, children and families
- Identify evidence-based practices to increase resilience in parents, caregivers and educators
- Improve capacity to strengthen and support the healthy social and emotional development of children in clinical, social service, behavioral health, child welfare and early education settings

Target Audience

The target audience includes those involved in providing assessment, treatment, education, support, and advocacy for children and families. Attendees will include psychiatrists, pediatricians, marriage family therapists, social workers, psychologists, mental health workers, substance abuse and addiction professionals, counselors and case managers, nurses, occupational therapists, physical therapists, teachers, educators, child welfare workers, early childhood education providers, childcare specialists, peer partners, mental health administrators and other healthcare and educational providers.

CME/CE Credit

If you registered for CME/CE credit, you may claim up to 13.5 contact hours of CME or up to 19.25 contact hours of CE credit. You will receive an email after the conference inviting you to evaluate this course and claim your credit. The last day to claim CME/CE credit online is October 22, 2021.

8:00 – 8:30 AM	The Deb Stolz Memorial Address and Welcoming Remarks Ali Freedman, PsyD, MBA, ECMH Conference Co-Chair Deb Stolz was a Founding Mother of the We Can't Wait Conference and a Grounding Mother for literally hundreds. She will continue to be a Guiding Mother for thousands through her legacy of teaching and being with others in exquisite compassion.
8:30 – 8:45 AM	Break
8:45 – 9:45 AM	(CME) Historical Context and Evolutionary Change vs. Revolutionary Change Jessica Pryce, PhD, MSW, Assistant Professor of Social Work and Director, Florida Institute for Child Welfare, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL IF-ECMH Competency Domain 1C, 1H Data has consistently revealed to us that our system, although well-intentioned, has created harm for many of the families we sought to help, and the harm inflicted on families of color is being uncovered more and more each day. Families of color are disproportionately represented in the foster care system and have poorer outcomes related to education, criminal justice involvement and mental health indicators. In this first keynote segment, the speaker will discuss the history of child welfare and how history and policy have shaped our system of care for families. This historical grounding creates an awareness of the infrastructure of our system and illuminates the implications of ineffectively pursuing reform. Additionally, this training segment will focus on a discussion of the evolutionary change that we have all experienced within our child welfare and mental health systems of care, despite the absence of revolutionary change. Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identify key historical events which impacted policy and our current system of care • Review organizational policies to identify ineffective procedures and inequitable impact • Explore revolutionary change opportunities within their organizations
9:45 – 10:00 AM	Break
10:00 – 11:00 AM	(CME) Power Privilege Mindset Shifting Jessica Pryce, PhD, MSW, Assistant Professor of Social Work and Director, Florida Institute for Child Welfare, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL IF-ECMH Competency Domain 1A, 1G, 1H Family engagement is a key strategy for identifying and cultivating resilience and addressing disparate outcomes. This second segment will include a framework for understanding the many power dynamics at play in our systems of care. Privilege will also be explored, as well as how we can leverage both within families. There will be a discussion of how philosophical positions and mindsets of our systems of care impact decision-making and family outcomes. All participants will be challenged to consider their own mindsets and to learn practical ways to create accountability within their organizations. This segment will conclude with a discussion of how our system would function after it has had true and meaningful systemic change.

Conference Schedule: Thursday, September 23

	Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Examine the differing types of mindsets that are at play within our work • Identify power dynamics and the potential for impact on the families we work with • Explore their mindset and how it impacts their decisions and behaviors at work

Conference Schedule: Thursday, September 23

	The Inaugural Birth of Brilliance Conference was held in February 2021. It was conceived by a multidisciplinary committee that was reeling from the events of the 2020 pandemic and the racial unrest that shook the U.S. after the murder of George Floyd. At that conference we endeavored to push the envelope by having difficult and uncomfortable conversations about privilege, race, and equity and how they impact service delivery. After the conference, we continued the conversations through monthly affinity groups. The process has been layered, insightful, rewarding, and not without missteps. Join us as we discuss how we leaned into and continue to lean into the difficult and vulnerable conversations needed to create personal and systems change and enhance the opportunities for our children’s brilliance to shine through. Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explore some barriers to difficult conversations around race and equity • Identify and acknowledge the types of missteps that are likely to occur when attempting difficult conversations around race and equity, and some ways to recover from these missteps • Examine how the Birth of Brilliance Conference committee used affinity groups as a supportive option for continued difficult conversations and for keeping the learning going from the Birth of Brilliance Conference

Dr. Patel Rao and Dr. Lukasik will share pearls from their disciplines (child psychiatry and clinical psychology) and from their collective clinical experience that can be utilized across disciplines and settings to develop comprehensive assessments and child- and family-centered treatment plans, which are the cornerstone for effectively approaching complex cases. These pearls will be discussed in the context of case examples with building layers. They will touch on the impact of the pandemic and resulting limitations when it comes to approaching complex cases. Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identify what makes a case complex • Explore approaches to get “unstuck” with a complex case • Practice these approaches using case examples
IF-ECMH Competency Domain 1A, 1C, 1E, 1F	C-2 (CME) Maternal and Paternal Mental Health: Mood Disorders That Should Not Be Missed Simi Brar, MD, Reproductive and Child and Adolescent Psychiatrist, University of California San Diego Health System and Rady Children’s Hospital – San Diego Maternal and paternal mood disorders are often hidden in plain sight, especially a medical emergency known as postpartum psychosis. Maternal depression and anxiety can affect up to 15-20% of mothers; postpartum paternal depression, often overlooked, can be just as common. Given that a growing child starts its early journey as a fetus, identifying mood disorders and mitigating caregiver stressors will be fundamental to offering every child a true healthy start in life. Growing evidence continues to emerge regarding the negative impact of untreated and undiagnosed mood disorders during pregnancy and the postpartum period on the growing fetus and child thereafter. Postpartum psychosis, namely, can have detrimental effects to not only the dyad, but the entire family system and community at large, given the lethal risks associated with undiagnosed and untreated illness. Identifying caregivers with reproductive mood disorders and offering the appropriate treatment is fundamental to a healthy start for family systems and young children.

Conference Schedule: Friday, September 24

	Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identify general epidemiology of mood disorders present in the reproductive period • Identify and explore the origin and impact of paternal depression • Identify and explore postpartum psychosis as a true medical emergency

IF-ECMH Competency Domain 1A, 1D, 1E, 1F	D-4 Understanding Attachment Styles in Caregivers Christopher Walsh, LMFT, Community Resource Center and Jeff Rowe, MD, Child and Adolescent Psychiatrist and ECMH Conference Co-Chair Human beings need to relate, engage, interact, and feel wanted by other people. Relationships with others are the way these needs can be satisfied. When relationships are under stress or threat and the connections between people risk breaking apart, people tend to fall back on old, ingrained, automatic patterns of behavior learned at a very young age. Often these patterns are developed during a person's earliest relationships through a process we call "attachment." Describing and defining a person's attachment style helps us understand these "driven or automatic" behaviors a person might use to preserve the relationship when they feel it is under stress or threat. These behaviors can occur in parent and child, adult and romantic partner, and client and therapist relationships. The objective of this session is to identify, understand and explore ways to work with adult caregiver patterns of attachment in support of greater security in the caregiver-child dyad. Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Review the four major styles of caregiver attachment as a continuum from disorganized to secure-autonomous • Discuss the significance of caregiver's attachment style in the shaping of a child's mind • Recognize insecure patterns of coping as strategies to maintain attachment • Explore the therapist's use of the self in support of corrective attachment experiences

The Rady initiative to integrate mental and behavioral health care into the pediatric primary care setting provides increased access to patient-centered mental and behavioral healthcare in an environment that is familiar and comfortable to families. Provision of mental health support in the context of the medical home destigmatizes mental health care. Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identify how Rady Children's Hospital is partnering with its Primary Care Provider Network to integrate mental and behavioral health in the pediatric practices • Examine features of the Integrated Health Therapist Model and how the dyad is supported • Explore how a holistic approach to care can increase access and improve patient outcomes • Illustrate, through a case presentation, how the integrated model of care results in earlier identification and treatment for families who are often unready or unable to connect with a new provider

IF-ECMH Competency Domain 1B, 1E, 1F, 1G	E-2 (CME) Developmental and Social Emotional Screening in Primary Care Lauren Gist, MD, MPH, Assistant Health Sciences Professor of Pediatrics, University of California San Diego and Developmental Behavioral Pediatrician, Rady Children's Hospital – San Diego The intent of this conference session is to discuss developmental delays in young children with an emphasis on developmental screening and surveillance. Presenter will discuss the importance of identifying developmental delays early, present standardized measures that may be used to identify those delays, discuss ways to present those results to families and then identify community resources to make referrals. Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Discover the importance of standardized screening for developmental delays in the general population as well as special populations • Illustrate the link between development and behavioral health • Explore ways to support family readiness around screening results and referrals • Review community resources and discover how to make referrals
IF-ECMH Competency Domain 1C, 1D	E-3 Re-Envisioning Self-Care Kristen Krauss, MA, Early Education Quality Improvement Support Coach, San Diego County Office of Education This session will provide a space for educators to gain insight into self-care that doesn't require an abundance of money or time but includes small everyday actions that contribute to their overall well-being. Educator well-being is imperative in providing a responsive and attuned relationship to students (children) and their families, thus allowing them to start attuning and responding to their own needs. In this session, attendees will identify personal self-care strategies that are individualized to their needs and ultimately impact their well-being as well as the well-being and success of the students and families they are serving. Creating resilient futures starts with the educators! Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explore the myths of self-care to identify their personal self-care strategies • Examine the connection between self-care and well-being • Review the direct relationship between educator well-being and student well-being and success

Stress Awareness During a Pandemic (Repeated in G-2 In Spanish) Ariane Porras, Consultant and Trainer, YMCA of San Diego County, Childcare Resource Service We humans are made up of mind, body and spirit. Toxic stress and other moments of overwhelm can cause disruptions or breaks in how those three elements communicate with one another. We can begin to heal those breaks and disconnects through a practice called embodiment, the practice of attending to your sensations. Through embodiment, we can find ways to be accepting of our internal experiences and thus more accepting of ourselves. Awareness of your body serves as a guiding compass to help you feel more in charge of the course of your life. In this session, participants will learn how our minds, bodies and spirits are wired to receive information and the different ways they process that information, especially under stress.

Conference Schedule: Saturday, September 25

	Attendees will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Explore how our mind, body and spirit react to stress and our environment • Receive prompts to be curious and incorporate daily embodiment practices • Practice guided embodiment practices • Review resources to learn further about embodiment

Reflective Practice enables us to gain insight into our experience, both past and present. Increased self-awareness leads to the mitigation of our implicit race-based biases, enhances our ability to respond empathically, facilitates shared power, and guides wise action. This relational practice helps inform the decisions we make while interacting with others, as well as influences the policies we create in our early childhood systems. Who then am I? How do I grow in cultural humility? What does each family need from me to partner effectively? Join in discussing the importance of Reflective Practice and tap into its power experientially to nurture and grow early childhood providers so we, in turn, support ALL babies and young children, and their families reach their fullest potential.

G-6 In English: The Benefits of Incorporating Mindfulness into Early Childhood Education (Repeated in F-1 in Spanish)

Nubia Soto, MS, MBA, Program Director, and Liza Bolaños, MS, Clinical Supervisor, Mi Escuelita, South Bay Community Services

The positive impact of mindfulness practices on child development is well supported in research studies. This workshop will offer an overview of the KIND curriculum, a highly adaptive instructional model which includes activities to cultivate kindness and connection in the classroom through social-emotional learning. Presenters will demonstrate mindfulness activities that can be used in the classroom with young children. Case examples and testimonials will highlight successful changes in behaviors of children with trauma in the classroom.

Attendees will be able to:

- Identify the aspects of mindfulness practices that are effective in the classroom
- Explore the benefits of mindfulness practice with young children, especially those who have experienced trauma
- Discover the impact of the KIND curriculum on challenging behaviors
- Practice mindfulness activities that can be incorporated into the classroom with children
